SUICIDE OF EUGENE SMITH

Was Being Questioned Before Grand Jury the Day Before Committing Deed

WAS THIRTY-SIX YEARS OLD

Takes His Own Life After Leaving Note Declaring His Innocence of the Murder of His Mother

As many of our readers are interested in the recent tragedies in the family of Frank Smith of Milford, Nebraska, a former resident of this place, the following article clipped from the "Blue Valley Blade" published at Seward, Nebraska, has been handed to us for publication.

"The community in the neighborhood of the Smith home, southwest of Milford, was startled yesterday morning by the announcement that Eugene Smith, son of Frank Smith, had hung himself at the home of his father at an early hour, after leaving a note saying that he was innocent of killing his mother, who died as the result of a blow on the left side of the head inflicted with a single-tree on December 16 of last year.

Eugene Smith and his father, Frank Smith, were in Seward Monday, the former being before the grand jury as a witness in the case of the murder of his mother which the jury has been investigating. He was extremely nervous while on the stand, and was to return the next day for further examination. He left Seward about 6:30 in the evening for home, his father remaining in Seward over night, having business in the district court. He arrived home before 9 o'clock and did the chores, had supper and retired about 9:30. He appeared restless and worried before retiring, and during the night got up and went out of the house about 3 o'clock, returning to his room later. He got up again five minutes before 6 and was not seen again until discovered by Mrs. Graham the housekeeper, who found him hanging in the driveway of the corn crib about 7 o'clock, who immediately notified Mr. Ackerman and Mr. Rich by phone, who are neighbors of the Smiths. Mr. Rich, who had earlier phoned to the housekeeper that he wanted to talk to Eugene, had started for the Smith place and arrived there shortly after the discovery of the body by Mrs. Graham, and upon examination found that he had evidently been dead for some time.

Coroner Wertman, Sheriff Gillan and Frank Smith were notified, and left immediately for the scene of the tragedy, arriving at the farm between 8 and 9 o'clock. The body was cut down by Coroner Wertman and an inquest was held. The evidence of Mrs. Graham, the housekeeper, and a woman who was visiting her, was that the deceased had gotten up about 5 o'clock and left the house. The women arose an hour later and prepared breakfast and remarked that Eugene had not yet taken the milk pails, and Mrs. Graham went to the door and called him but got no response. A little later Mr. Rich called up over the phone and wanted to speak to Eugene. She called him again and got no answer, and told Mr. Rich that she would hunt him up and have him call him up. She went to the barn and called, and getting no answer went to another part of the barn yard where she thought he might be, and in passing the double corn crib discovered his body hanging in the driveway, and immediately notified the neighbors by phone. Mr. Rich soon arrived. The body was left hanging until the Coroner cut it down. A jury was impaneled and returned a verdict that the deceased came to his death by his own hand for reasons to the jury unknown.

The deceased was about thirty-six years of age. He was married about two years ago, but only lived with his wife a short time it is said. That he contemplated taking his life is evidenced from the fact that on Monday evening, after leaving the grand jury room, he showed Attorney R. P. Anderson his will and insurance policy for 2,000 in the K. O. T. M., order, which were both in favor of his deceased mother and asked Mr. Anderson to whom the property would revert in case of his death. He left the following note on the leaf of a bank book: "I am innocent. Please have Mr. Rich preach my funeral. A. E. Smith."

Comfort Before Art. Architecture is a lost art. Today we need only hygienic, comfortable buildings. Our modern offices are ugly, but we do not notice it. They suit the modern state of mind and the modern conditions of life.—Munich Kunst.

DESERTER GOES SWIMMING

But is Surprised by a Detachment From the Fort and Captured After Long Chase

Boys in swimming often steal and hide the clothes one of their number and go away leaving him to find his way home without clothing as best he may.

The capture of Waldron Taylor, said to be a deserter from the military post at Fort Sheridan, has almost similar farcical circumstances.

Taylor, who is said to be a deserter of several days' standing from the reservation, made his getaway successfully and landed near Evanston, Ill., where he made his camp on the banks of the Desplaines, which is some distance from the village.

There a detachment from the fort discovered him late Monday afternoon.

He had his clothes neatly piled on one of the banks of the river, and was swimming down stream when the military guard after him came upon the scene.

The clothes were confiscated. Taylor got out of the water and onto the other bank.

He was easily in need of some covering for his body, but there was the detachment waiting for him to come out so with a look of desperation he pelted up the road with the men thundering after him.

On the way he stampeded a mixed picnic party, numbers of which ran screaming away at his approach, and was finally captured and brought back to the fort, this time with the clothes on.

NARROWLY ESCAPED DROWNING

The 4-year-old child of Mr. and Mrs. John Sporenburg, who is employed on the James Blanchard farm on Sheridan Road, Monday afternoon narrowly escaped drowning when it fell into a cistern, the top of which had been carelessly left uncovered by painters. That the child was rescued was miraculous.

The little child had been playing about the yard for some time when suddenly the mother missed her. A few moments later she heard muffled cries in the direction of the cistern from which direction the cries seemed to come, she discovered the child struggling in the water while she just managed to keep her head above the water by catching hold of a piece of pipe.

Mr. Sporenburg was hastily summoned and after considerable difficulty managed to crawl down into the cistern and rescue the little one, who was ready to lose her hold through sheer exhaustion.

Painters had been doing some work about the house and for some reason neglected to cover the cistern. The child did not see the opening and stumbled into it.

LAKE COUNTY MAN BEATS WHOLE STATE

High honors in the first day's shooting in the Illinois State Sportsmen's tournament, which is being held at the Chicago Gun Club grounds, went to Jay R. Graham of Fox Lake, brother to Supervisor Thomas Graham, and one of the younger brothers of the Graham family of shooters, when he won the 100 target event for the $300 board of trade diamond medal.

Graham's victory came after a hard fought match with the best marksmen in Illinois, and not until he had defeated Lem Willard in an extra round affair, 25 to 22 targets.

Both Graham, 21 yards, and Willard 20 yards, scored 93 clays out of 100, while H. J. Dunnell, also of Fox Lake, registered 95. George Roll, counted 91. B. Dunnell of Fox Lake, counted 90 to his credit, the last two named were on the twenty yard line.

This event brought out the most excitement of the day, as several out of town men of the highest reputations entered with the intention of carrying the much sought prize away from the Chicagoans, who have held control of the medal for a number of years.

Dread of Marble Portraits.

"One peculiarity of human nature that I am reminded of daily," said a sculptor, "is the distastefulness of the average man to look upon himself reproduced in marble. The slight strikes him with positive dread. It makes him feel as if he were looking on his own lifeless body. For that reason it is difficult to persuade many persons worth modelling to sit for a sculptor. Frequently I am asked why most of my work is modeled after dead and gone subjects. The answer is that living people refuse to give me a commission. The art of the sculptor differs there from that of the painter. Everybody likes to be painted. The sight of one's face, one's figure, one's clothes in a picture evokes nothing but pleasurable emotions. If well done, but to see one's self carved out of marble produces such an overpowering sense of death that many sensitive persons put off immortalization at the hands of a sculptor until they are really dead."

MANY OUT OF WORK

Naval Training Station Employees Suffer From Error of Manufacturer

USES WRONG MATERIALS

5,000 Window Frames Made by a Manufacturer in Ohio Condemned—Entire Work Held up as Result

Hundreds of laborers, brickmasons, carpenters and inspectors have been idle at the naval training station for the past week and according to present indications will be laid off or paid off within the next few days unless complications that have arisen lately are overcome and everything takes a more advanced nature in the eyes of those in charge of the work.

Recently 5,000 window frames of all sizes and dimensions, for use in the larger buildings at the station, which were only shipped Saturday last, were found to be other than were called for in the specifications. The result was they were condemned and will be thrown aside at the cost of the maker, whose place of business is at Dayton, Ohio.

It is estimated that the cost of the condemned frames will reach as high as $5,000.

The mason work which had previously proceeded as far as possible and which was awaiting the arrival of the frames, will be forced to stop.

It was learned at the station that specifications called for white pine frames; those sent were composed of a little of everything.

This condemnation ties up all the building work at the station. Hundreds of men have been thrown out of work by the action of the maker, and it is understood and affirmed that he will be forced to stand all damages should an investigation prove that it was his fault that the specifications were not lived up to.

Local carpenters who have visited the station are of the opinion that when a careful investigation is made the results may lead to the government accepting the frames, as some are of the opinion that the frames are made of western white pine. This material is equally as good as the eastern pine, but their resemblance is far from the same.

Uncle Sam will make an investigation, through the inspectors, immediately.

DISPLEASES THE OLD TIMERS.

Prejudice Against Power Transmission Through the Mountains.

Cautiously trailing through some shadowy canyon of the Sierras, perhaps with treacherous footing along the bed of a turbulent mountain stream, sheer, craggy walls of rock rising on either side to 60, 80 or 100 feet, from which every vestige of living green has been torn by the spring torrents and above which again mount 300 or 400 feet of steep, forest-clad slopes, the keen eye of hunter or prospector may sometimes light upon two or three wires swinging in a crescent high above the feathered tops of the pines. The span from supporting peak to supporting peak may be 200 or 3,000 feet.

If the explorer is a stranger and unacquainted with the peculiarities of the country his first thought will be of telegraph or telephone. But the old hand knows better and, if a hunter, will probably ejaculate with an oath: "Transmission!"

Pride Helps.

We mortals, men and women, do our many a disappointment between breakfast and dinner time, keep back the tears and look a little pale about the lips, and in answer to inquiries say: "Oh, nothing!" Pride helps us, and pride is not a bad thing when it only urges us to hide our own hurts—not to hurt others.—George Eliot.

BURGLARS AT GRAYSLAKE BLOW SAFE AND SECURE MONEY

At about 1:30 o'clock Thursday morning a daring burglary was committed at Grayslake in the general merchandise store of Kuebler & Hoom. An entrance was effected by forcing a rear door.

The safe was blown open with nitroglycerine which completely forced open the door, after two holes had been drilled therein.

The burglars secured $40 in money and a gold watch. Some tools had been secured from the

ANOTHER ZION VICTIM

Florence Ferrin Took Wood Alcohol and Then Drowns Self in Lake

WAS PARHAMITE BELIEVER

Began to Act Strangely After She Became Affiliated With Parhamite Sect and Got Gift of Tongues

Her mind unbalanced by the doctrines of Parhamism, a love motive hinted back of the tragedy, Saturday night Florence Ferrin of Zion City committed suicide, first by taking wood alcohol in her room at the home, 2920 Elm avenue, and then by casting herself into the lake 200 feet south of Twenty-ninth street.

About a month ago Miss Ferrin received the "gift of tongues" at a Parham meeting at the Haven and since that time has often expressed the hope that she were dead. She was of a melancholy and brooding nature.

Saturday night it is said she had a quarrel with her father, Wells Ferrin, who is stated to be a Parhamite and a disturber of Voliva meetings. What this quarrel was about little can be learned, but it is said the daughter claimed to have received a revelation ordering her father to stop annoying Voliva.

He refused and there was a stormy scene and the girl left the house.

A sister, Miss Bernice, discovered the girl's absence when she came home from a party at 12 Saturday night. She gave the alarm and at 2 the search began.

It was Ed. Connigan who found the girl's body in shallow water on the lake front. This was at 7:30 Sunday morning and barely had Connigan discovered the girl when her father came along with a horse and buggy. The girl was lifted into the buggy and removed to the main part of Zion City, where the inquest was held.

Traces of wood alcohol spilled on the floor of the girl's room and evidences that she swallowed some of it and threw it up afterward led to the conclusion that she took this poison first and then went to the lake, waded out, and deliberately drowned.

Her sister, Alice, is a missionary in Africa and the entire family is of a sensitively religious temperament. This is believed to be at the bottom of the girl's trouble, with possibly a love motive underlying.

While one of the dead girl's sisters is said to have been a chum of Chester Gillette, executed for the murder of Billie Brown in New York, Florence Ferrin barely knew Gillette except through the other members of the family, and it is said never to have corresponded with him.

She is said to have acted strangely ever since a time five weeks ago.

There was no evidence of murder. Many believed at first that the case was of murder, but Coroner Tynler's inquest disproved this.

The Zion police promise startling revelations in the case. Just what direction these will take is not known, but neighbors are said to have given the information that the Ferrins are poorly fed and that the parents refused to give the girls sufficient food, clothing or any pin money.

LIBERTYVILLE TO HAVE NO RACES

Because Galeburg has decided that after all it wishes a trotting meet and because Libertyville has forfeited one of its dates beyond recall, Libertyville will lose its chance of having a meet in Lake county until September. The news became known Saturday night.

Neither Borrow Nor Lend.

Neither a borrower nor a lender be; for loan oft loses both itself and friend, and borrowing dulls the edge of husbandry.—Shakespeare, "Hamlet."

BURGLARS AT GRAYSLAKE BLOW SAFE AND SECURE MONEY

Wisconsin Central railroad tool house, also from Pester's blacksmith shop, which were used in forcing an entrance to the store.

There is no night marshal at Grayslake, and had there been it is doubtful if the explosion would have been heard, as the safe had previously been covered with clothing to deaden the sound.

The authorities have not been able to apprehend the robbers and they seem to have made good their escape.

FORMER RESIDENT DEAD

Wallace W. Bingham Passed Away After Short Illness of Two Days.

After a brief illness of two days, Wallace W. Bingham passed away on the evening of May 20, at ten o'clock at his home in Chicago.

He was born in the state of New York, on November 5th 1828, where he passed the first five years of his life, at that age his parents moved to Medina county, Ohio remaining there until he had reached his fourteenth year when they settled in Fort Wayne, Indiana.

He was a lad of studious habits and greatly interested in all educational matters, and taught his first term of school at the age of nineteen. At one time he was considered among the best teachers in the southern part of Wisconsin, and many of our readers will remember him as a popular instructor of a portion of their school days.

On July 20, 1852, he was united in marriage to Minerva A. Drom of Antioch, Ill., making their home at this place until April 1864, when they moved to Chicago.

Old business men of the city of Chicago will remember his efficient services in the Recorder's office from 1868 to 1876.

After the Ashtabula disaster, December 29, 1876 in which his wife nearly lost her life, they moved to Marenzo, Ill., staying there four years, then returning to Chicago, where he spent the sunset years of his life.

He was a member of the Masonic Fraternity and belonged to the Garfield lodge for many years.

He was an active member of the Central Park Presbyterian church, and rarely a Sabbath passed that did not find him morning and evening in his accustomed place, even on the last sabbath of his life he was faithful in his attendance morning and evening.

His memory will long be cherished by a wide circle of friends.

He leaves to mourn his loss a wife and an only daughter.

The funeral was held in Chicago on Saturday last and the remains were brought here for interment in the Liberty cemetery. About twenty-three members of Garfield lodge accompanied the remains here and a Masonic burial was given him, the service also being attended by a number of the members of Sequoit lodge A. F. and A. M.

The deceased was a relative of Wallace and Dwight Drom of this place.

"SNAPPERS" MUSHROOMS GUINEA PIGS

Turtles, guinea pigs, gold fish, mushrooms. These will be the products of a unique farm which H. I. Miller, president of the Chicago & Eastern Illinois railroad, proposes to operate at Barrington, Lake county.

Mr. Miller has purchased 200 acres of rolling timbered land for his odd venture. He has begun the construction of numerous ponds and lagoons. These will be used for the propagation of turtles and gold fish. His mushrooms will not be of the cultivated kind, but will grow wild in the woodlands. His guinea pig yards will be the largest, it is expected, in the country.

To most people it will be a surprise to learn that there is a constant and growing market in Chicago for all these things. Mr. Miller, who is one of the best known and busiest railroad men in the country, has taken time from his business affairs to make a thorough study of the products he plans to cultivate.

HEART BEATS GIVE WARNING.

Irregular Action That Presages Attack of Scarlet Fever.

The scarlet fever heart is a peculiarity lately noticed for the first time, by a German medical man. With the stethoscope it is recognized by a reduplication of the first heart sound, followed by a rough rasping or scraping, and this appears at the onset of many cases of scarlet fever, often when no other symptoms are to be detected. In some epidemics these sounds may be heard in the majority of cases, while at other times they may be quite regularly absent. Their presence is of great value in diagnosis and may be the only warning signal to guard against the spread of infection.

A boy who was pale, languid and anemic had no other symptoms except the irregular heart sounds. From these his case was decided to be scarlet fever and subsequent peeling of the skin proved the correctness of the diagnosis. Certain children in the chickenpox ward of a hospital were restless and obviously ill. The heart sounds indicated scarlet fever, and in these cases, too, desquamation followed, although there had been no eruption or other sign. Directly afterward this ward had an outbreak of scarlet fever in its usual form.

WAUKEGAN SUICIDE MYSTERY

Canadian Takes Poison and Is Found Dead in Bed at Schwartz Hotel

EMPTY BOTTLE IS FOUND

C. A. Watier Applied After Midnight for a Room and Chambermaid Finds His Lifeless Body Next Morning

Lying flat on his stomach, with his head hanging off the bed, while on the bed lay a bottle of poison believed by physicians to be cyanide of potassium, an open pearl handled knife, apparently new, and a new buldog 32 caliber revolver, the body of one who signed his name on the hotel register as C. A. Watier of London, Ontario, Canada, was found by the chambermaid of the Hotel Schwartz, Waukegan, at 1:30 Saturday afternoon.

Deputy Coroner Edward Conrad was summoned by Mr. Markus, the new proprietor of the hotel, and took charge of the remains. He has started an investigation as to the cause of the man's demise.

Entering the hotel at 11 o'clock Friday night, the man applied to the clerk for a room, telling him at that time that he had been referred to the hotel by Night Chief of Police Vogel. The man was immediately assigned to room 25 on the second floor, a room just next to that occupied by Manager Dalrymple of the Schwartz theater, and no more was seen of him until the discovery of his body.

The chambermaid of the hotel was the first to discover the suicide. On passing the darkened room at noon, when making up the beds, she wondered if the room was occupied and made an attempt to open the door. To her surprise the door yielded and there, lying before her, she witnessed for the first time the suicide on the bed.

Rushing down the stairs at breakfast speed, the maid rushed into the office of hotel and notified those present of the discovery.

While a number present rushed to the suicide's room, others telephoned to the police headquarters and to Deputy Coroner Conrad.

The dead wagon was brought to the scene and the investigation started.

A search by the coroner revealed the empty vial, a small wine glass, the opened knife and the loaded revolver. None showed use with the exception of the vial, which was empty.

A card found in the man's pocket assured the deputy coroner that the man had signed his correct name on the register, as here again was found the name, C. A. Watier, London, Ontario, Canada.

In the man's clothing were found a box of cigarette cigars, $1.94, a cheap finger-soll watch, an extra pair of cheap cuff buttons and a small pig-skin pocketbook of the variety commonly used by Canadians.

Later—a letter received by Chief of Police Tynler Wednesday morning from P. L. O'Brien, captain commanding of the detective bureau of Chicago, states that the man beyond a doubt is Chas. A. Watiers of Chicago, who left that city for Evanston a week ago Saturday and has been missing ever since.

CARRIES WIRELESS IN POCKET.

Boy Who Can Telegraph Home as He Walks Along the Road.

Walter J. Willenborg is a boy who has decided to conquer the problems of wireless telegraphy. He has his own laboratory adjoining his bedroom. He has constructed a wireless receiving station at the top of the house.

Curious to see what could be done on a small scale, says St. Nicholas, he invented and made a portable telegraphic station that he could carry about in his pockets. From the top button of his coat he hung a slender wire that reached to the ground and so arranged that when he walked along a country road the wire would trail upon the ground behind him.

In his pocket he carried a little battery. On a bit of board as big as your hand he placed a complete wireless transmitting apparatus, induction coil, baby sander and all, supporting this feisty telegraph station by fastening it to a belt around his waist.

From this traveling station he sent messages from a country road to his folks at home eight miles away in town, telling them where he was and where he was going and that he would reach home in time for supper.

SYNOPSIS.

Burton H. Barnes, a wealthy American touring Corsica, rescues the young English lieutenant, Edward Gerard Anstruther, and his Corsican bride, Marina, daughter of the Paolis, from the murderous vendetta, understanding that his reward is to be the hand of the girl he loves, Enid Anstruther, sister of the English lieutenant. The four fly from Ajaccio to Marseilles on board the French steamer Constantine. The vendetta pursues and as the quartet are about to board the train for London at Marseilles, Marina is handed a mysterious note which causes her to collapse and necessitates a postponement of the journey. Barnes and Enid are married. Soon after their wedding Barnes' bride disappears. Barnes discovers she has been kidnapped and taken to Corsica. The groom secures a fishing vessel and is about to start in pursuit of his bride's captors when he hears a scream from the villa and rushes back to hear that Anstruther's wife, Marina, is also missing. Barnes is compelled to depart for Corsica without delay, and so he leaves the search for Marina to her husband while he goes to hunt for Enid. Just before Barnes' boat lands on Corsica's shore Marina is discovered hiding in a corner of the vessel. She explains her action by saying she has come to help Barnes rescue his wife from the Corsicans. When Barnes and Marina arrive in Corsica he is given a note written by Enid informing him that the kidnapping is for the purpose of capturing Barnes so the vendetta may kill him. Barnes and Marina have unusual adventures in their search for Enid. They are taken in sight of her and her captors in the Corsican mountain wilds just as the night approaches. In seeking shelter from a storm the couple enter a hermitage and there to their amazement they discover Tomasso, the foster father of Marina, who was supposed to have been killed by De Bellac's soldiers, and for whose death Barnes had been vendettized. Tomasso learns that Marina's husband did not kill her brother, wrong as he might be. Barnes is surprised in the hermitage by Rochini and Romano, the two detected bandits, who have been waiting for him to murder him for his money. The bandits attempt to take away Marina. Barnes darts out the door. The bandits start to pursue him, but as they reach the door both are laid low by Barnes' revolver. Members of the Bellacosa enter and Barnes is honored for his great service to the community in killing the hated Rochini and Romano. The release of Enid is promised. Barnes is conveyed, in triumph to Sogeano. Marina acquiesces the Bellacosa with Saliceti's plot against her husband and the people are instructed to vote against him at the coming election. Barnes is taken to the mansion of the Paolis to meet Enid. Marina receives a telegram. She starts for Bastia to meet her husband, entering the room to greet his wife Barnes is bewildered to find the adventures La Belle Blackwood, but not Enid. She had been substituted for the American's bride by a shrewd plot. Lieutenant Anstruther arrives to find Marina and learns that she has been lured away by a telegram which had been sent by another without his knowledge. The two start in search of Marina.

So they spring off their horses and dear old Monsieur Staffe, recognizing the American, is about to offer them rooms when they both suddenly question him and learn to their concern that no lady has arrived from the interior this day at his hotel.

"She is drawn by two horses driven by an old Corsican with a beard several weeks old," says Barnes.

"It doesn't matter how she was driven; no lady has arrived here, gentlemen."

"Then Marina must have gone to inquire at the steamer offices as to when I'll arrive," cries Edwin.

"Mon Dieu!" ejaculates Monsieur Staffe, his eyes lighting up, "you are the young English naval officer whose wedding to Mademoiselle Paoli created such an excitement in the island two weeks ago. Believe me, Monsieur, your wife is not in Bastia, or I should have heard of it. Everybody here honors the name of Paoli—and your sweet spouse is very much loved for her own dear self."

Despite Monsieur Staffe's assertions, the two young men stride out of his hotel, and though desperately fatigued, make inquiries at the offices of the Fraissinet and the Florio Ruballinto companies, but no lady asking for arriving boats has been there, at all events, none answering Marina's description.

"We may have passed her on the road," remarks Barnes sympathetically; his anguish making him feel for his companion. "We'll give her two hours to come in and overtake us—two hours of rest, the poor fellow stretches his limbs wearily. 'I'm flesh and blood, Anstruther. You didn't climb mountains all yesterday, as I did.'"

But Edwin, being unaccustomed to horseback exercise, though wiry enough upon the ship's deck, is stiff and sore. Compelled from very fatigue, the young man contrive to limp back to the Hotel de Franco, where they are very well taken care of, and two hours' sleep measurably revives them. Barnes has had a shave and would look almost dobonair, when he comes down to breakfast at noon, but the cavities which hold his eyes abnormally brightened by anxiety give the lie to any appearance of lightness. Anstruther is even more worried than before—and now, as the day draws on, without his wife appearing, a look of fear comes into the young man's face that is horrible.

Gazing at him, Barnes mutters: "Are you good for another ride?"

"Yes—where?"

"We must take the back track," says the American. "We rode too rapidly this morning, thinking Marina was just ahead of us, for a critical investigation."

"Get under way," answers the lieutenant, and the two ride out of Bastia, making inquiries at every village and learning nothing.

In fact, the peasants, as they get nearer Ponte-alla-Lecchia, are too much excited over the election of the morning to talk about much else. "Voting-day is to be celebrated by a race riot of the Lucchese," says one whom Barnes is questioning on the highway just where the Morosaglia road leaves it leading to the Tuscan sea.

Edwin has dismounted and is slouching morosely along the road to ease his tortured legs.

"Why don't they wipe out these mutinous Lucchese?" says the officer, in quarterdeck tones as they get on their horses again.

"Then the native Corsicans would have to work. These Lucchese come over here from Italy and do the manual labor for them. But I can find no trace of your loved one or of mine," adds Barnes, almost despairingly, as they ride along the road, their inquiries growing more close and persistent till they reach Corte.

Together, disconsolately, the poor fellows force themselves to try to eat. The election excitement is growing higher, a brass band comes past, at its head a placard, "Vote for Saliceti!" and Barnes gasps his teeth.

But turning from this, he rather curiously says suddenly: "Anstruther, you've got a flower in your button-hole."

"Oh, yes, I was so miserable I hardly knew what I was doing. I picked up this crimson thing in the road when you were talking to the peasant who was telling you of the Lucchese riots down at Orezza."

"There was no tree bearing the flower where you picked it up?" asks the American suddenly.

"No, I think not. I don't believe there was a shrub of any kind within a hundred feet of it. Why do you ask?" for the other's tone is excited.

"Why, because that's the cyclamen flower, one of the kind of which Marina bore whole branches in her carriage. Was there a branch attached to it?"

"I think there was. Hang it, I remember, I pulled it off. I—what are you driving at?"

"Well, could that flower have been dropped at the entrance of the Morosaglia road with design by your wife out of her carriage?"

The English seaman gasps for breath, but tired as he is and stiff as he is he staggers up and says hurriedly: "Come!" and the two, through the night again, for it has grown very dark, ride down to Ponte-alla-Lecchia.

"By heaven, I wish we had hope of my sister also," says Edwin as they hurry along, though the poor sailor has difficulty in keeping himself in the saddle.

"It Doesn't Matter How She Was Driven, No Lady Has Arrived Here, Gentlemen."

"I have a little," answers Barnes. "You think Enid might be with Marina?"

"Yes, if Cipriano Danella has her. He apparently wants a chance at my life if Saliceti misses it. He may have taken Enid to some out of the way place, so that striving to find her I may die in his vendetta."

So he and Edwin walk their horses up to the junction of the Morosaglia road.

"Did you find that flower here?" he asks Edwin.

"Yes, pretty well toward the middle of the path."

Though the moon has just risen they can find no more cyclamen blossoms and here a sudden complication confronts them. Another road leading toward the northwest and running to Novella, Belgodere and the Ile Rousse, also leaves the Bastia road at the same point.

It is just as probable that Marina's course was directed toward the northwest as toward the east. In fact, it is a toss-up which way your wife went," remarks Barnes. "Now, there is only one way to settle it, if this cyclamen flower means anything. That is for you to investigate one road and I the other."

So it is arranged that Barnes takes the road toward the Ile Rousse, and Edwin follows the path leading to the east toward Morosaglia.

"If I find no more of these flowers going toward the northwest, I'll return here and follow you," remarks Burton.

After giving these directions, the American, desperately fatigued and mightily sleepy, jogs his steed in the direction of Ile Rousse, 20 miles to the northwest. In the moonlight, the distracted man, though he dismounts often, discovers no cyclamen flowers lying in the road. But he doggedly keeps on, hoping to find some of the flowers that may indicate he is following Marina.

"It's the only claw we have now to Marina, and it may lead me to Cipriano," he mutters, as he struggles to keep himself in the saddle.

Finally, arriving at Belgodere in the early morning and learning from the innkeeper that no carriage has passed through, exhausted, worn out and disappointed, even Barnes succumbs to nature. He has been 48 hours under headway, 30 of these on horseback and eight of them climbing precipices; and despite despair and anxiety, sleep claims him—the terrible sleep of utter exhaustion.

It is late when he opens his eyes again and with a start wonders where he is. He looks over the brilliant mountains, he sees the vines and only a few miles away, the waters beside which stands Isola Rossa. The innkeeper says "Breakfast, Signore," and serves him with crabs and lobsters from the Gulf of Fiorenza. Mine host's little daughter places a bouquet of wild flowers on the table. In it gleams the red cyclamen. Barnes remembers and orders a fresh horse.

While this is being saddled he forces himself to eat. "Anstruther has not followed me," he reasons. "I'll have a long ride to overtake him and when we meet Cipriano Danella I want to be fit to kill." Mounting a fresh steed, he gallops off, retracing his steps, all the time in his heart one question: "Where is my stolen bride?"

The night before, Edwin, turning to the east, begins to climb the awful hill leading to the Morosaglia. A few minutes after he has left the Corte road, in the faint glow of the coming moonlight, he springs off his horse and utters an exclamation of delight. As he pulls himself sailor fashion into the saddle, he has a branch of crimson flowers in his hand. He is not certain even now that they indicate Marina; though they have fallen from no overhanging bough, only heech and Laricello firs being near him, he knows cyclamen flowers are very common in the island, and the little barefooted boys and girls sometimes carry them in their hands.

In the group of hamlets on the hill-sides called Morosaglia, Anstruther does not pause.

But as he reaches the confines of the village, the young husband starts and his eyes, which fatigue had dulled, glisten with hope. Here are two paths, a trail leading to the north, the other and broader one pointing east toward the Tuscan sea. Along the latter, cyclamen branches have been dropped several times in a short hundred yards.

Their number is significant, they have been strewn quite continuously from the forks of the road. "My darling's message to me," murmurs Anstruther, and rides as hastily as his tired though wiry little horse will take him.

The branches of the sweet-smelling posies he still encounters on the trail hurry him up hill and down hill, over running mountain streams, through wooded vales. Yet at least Nature must have its meed—despite all efforts of the rider, his head droops and his figure becomes lax in the saddle.

His steed with a whinny of joy almost runs down into a little valley and drawing suddenly up, before a high campanile stone building, Anstruther falls off his horse into the arms of a good Monk of the Convent of Piedicroce, who mutters: "Thank the Saints, you got here alive in time to drink the water of Orezza." For Anstruther's appearance between fear and fatigue and racking anxiety is now that of a man high onto death.

The hospitable friars put the invalid to bed, and at high noon the next day the invalid, after another glass or two of the famous youth-giving Orezza water, which here springs bubbling from the earth, eats the noonday meal the good friars set before him; rises, gives them the blessing of a strong man and hurries on.

Gen. O. O. HOWARD.

DURING the latter part of the war, in 1864, and until its close, in 1865, I was connected with the armies under Gen. Sherman, usually designated the Army of the Tennessee, the Army of the Cumberland and the Army of the Ohio, wrote Maj. Gen. O. O. Howard. The campaigns were exceedingly active. From Chattanooga to Atlanta Sherman's soldiers were under fire every day, except the three just before crossing the Etowah, for 113 days. There was not a day or night in which there were no soldiers slain. The screaming shells burst over our heads while we were sleeping, but, wonderful to tell, the soldiers had become so used to this conflict that they lost very little sleep in consequence of the flint and random firing at night.

In that period of 113 days there were 19 sizable battles fought. In one attack I made at Pickett's Mill I lost 800 killed and three times as many wounded within the space of 15 minutes. At night I sat among the wounded and realized something of the horrors of war. It seems to me today as I think of it like a terrible nightmare, but it was a more terrible reality, which I will not attempt to describe.

When I come to think of the "March to the Sea" and later the "March Through the Carolinas," what occurs to my memory first is the exceeding hardness of the soldiers. They recovered quickly from their wounds, I mean from those that were not too severe, and there was scarcely any illness. But when Columbia was on fire an untold number perished in the flames. Still more perished from accidental explosion of confederate shells at Columbia and Cheraw. We like to turn away from the mangled corpses and distorted faces of the wounded that cannot be described. I feel the same horror and depression in view of these things as I did at Gettysburg, where on both sides upward of 50,000 men were placed hors de combat. For several days poor fellows, union and confederate soldiers, waited in patience, unattended by surgeons, simply because there were not enough of them.

Without further detail, imagine the joy that came over the armies of Sherman as they gathered about Raleigh, N. C., in 1865, and were told that Lee had surrendered and that Grant had sent Lee's soldiers home to begin life anew; that Johnston had surrendered on the same terms as Lee and all that belonged to Sherman's and Howard's armies were to march on the morrow toward Washington, the capital of the nation, soon to be mustered out of service and then to go home. I remember the sudden depression at the news of Lincoln's death; but still this going home produced too great a joy to keep ever this catastrophe of their heavy loss very long before their minds. They marched habitually at 20 miles a day from Raleigh to Richmond, and never seemed weary at the close of any day's march—the camp fire was bright, the old songs were sung over and over again, and the comradeship knitted during the war would never cease—it was at its best when the word "peace" filled all the air.

I know that we were proud when we marched past the president of the United States in our last grand review; but, as I remember it, it was a painful pride, even then. A regiment had gone out 1,000 strong; it had been recruited and re-recruited; it had been veteranized and added to in other ways; and now it was bringing home less than 300 of all the men who had gone out from that section of the country from which it had come. The joy of going home for the 300 was great, but it was a fearful joy the instant one thought of the 800 or more who could not go home, who never did go home, who were buried somewhere in the broad land over which the 300 had marched, and too often with a headpiece marked "Unknown."

After the war I stood in the large cemetery near Murfreesboro, Tenn., with Gen. R. B. Hayes (afterward president) and Mrs. Hayes. I remember how Mrs. Hayes, who was an exceedingly handsome woman, looked up into the faces of the general and myself as her large, dark, sparkling eyes were flooded with tears, when she said: "Just look there, that plot of ground is covered with headstones marked 'Unknown.' Unknown, unknown," she repeated, "and yet he gave his life that his country might live!"

It was a touching picture, but every time I think of it I say to myself: "Really, that 'unknown' soldier, apparently unknown, recorded unknown, was not really unknown. Somebody knew him. His comrades knew him. A mother, a sister, a wife and children, if he had them, knew him. There is a better record somewhere than that in the soldiers' cemetery." Our faith is so strong that we all believe in the resurrection and in the future life and have a great satisfaction in feeling that no sacrifice and particularly not that of life itself for duty, for what one sincerely believes to be duty, has ever been or ever will be made in vain.

The saddest pictures of all, to my mind, are those connected with a losing battle like that of Fredericksburg, and still more that of Chancellorsville. At Fredericksburg the army of Burnside went straight forward to its own destruction. The lines of Lee, half encircling Burnside's points of attack, were complete. It was like a trap into which an animal deliberately puts his feet. We sprang the trap, and it is a wonder that Lee had not dealt with Burnside's army as the sturdy Thomas dealt with Hood's at Nashville. I can see in my mind's eye those immense plateaus in front of the Marne Heights and other confederate intrenchments and barricades covered with the dead and dying. The plateaus were fairly blue, as they were dotted with the wearers of our uniform.

Gen. Couch was standing by my side in the steeple of a church, near the close of that battle, where we together were taking a fresh reconnaissance, when I noticed that his voice trembled as he spoke to me. He said: "Oh, Gen. Howard, look there! Look there! See the ground covered with the boys in blue, and all to no purpose."

After we had returned, all of us who could return, to the other shore of the Rappahannock, the depression of the soldiers was greater than at any other time during the war. We could hardly speak to each other. Now, after years, we can recognize the fact that our grief was balanced by the joy of the confederates over a great victory, and yet not a decisive one, gained by them.

At a moderate calculation there were sent into eternity more than a million of men, who left home in the prime of health and in strength; more than a million of souls by the terrible conflict. For one, I am glad, indeed, that there is an effort on foot to settle difficulties without bloodshed. Of course, the waste of human life is not all of it. There is in every war a waste of possessions, a destruction of property and a degradation of character hard to avoid at the best. I know that there are some things worse than death. I know that the union of our states was worth all that it cost, and I know that, humanly speaking, it was necessary that we should be purged as by fire; but it is not wise now to do all that we can to hold up to the world the blessings of a front peace; even the peace that passeth understanding, which never must exclude any of the noblest qualities of a womanly woman or a manly man.

A sort of full of memorial greetings to all our sorrowing comrades of the civil war.

Saved From Being a Cripple for Life.

"Almost six or seven weeks ago I became paralyzed all at once with rheumatism," writes Mrs. Louis McKee, 913 Seventh street, Oakland, Cal. "It struck me in the back and extended from the hip of my right leg down to my foot. The attack was so severe that I could not move in bed and was afraid that I should be a cripple for life."

"About 12 years ago I received a sample bottle of your Liniment but never had occasion to use it, as I have always been well, but something told me that Sloan's Liniment would help me, so I tried it. After the second application I could get up out of bed, and in three days could walk, and now feel well and entirely free from pain."

"My friends were very much surprised at my rapid recovery and I was only too glad to tell them that Sloan's Liniment was the only medicine I used."

COMMON PHRASE.

"Something hard to beat."

Preparation for Knowledge.

No man can learn what he has not preparation for learning, however near to his eyes is the subject. A chemist may tell his most precious secrets to a carpenter, and he shall be never the wiser—the secrets he would not utter to a chemist for an estate. God screens us evermore from premature ideas. Our eyes are hidden that we can not see things that store us in the face until the hour arrives when the mind is ripened; then we behold them, and the time when we saw them not is like a dream.—Emerson.

DR. TALKS OF FOOD.

Pres. of Board of Health.

"What shall I eat?" is the daily inquiry the physician is met with. I do not hesitate to say that in my judgment a large percentage of disease is caused by poorly selected and improperly prepared food. My personal experience with the fully-cooked food, known as Grape-Nuts, enables me to speak freely of its merits.

"From overwork, I suffered several years with malnutrition, palpitation of the heart and loss of sleep. Last summer I was led to experiment personally with the new food, which I used in conjunction with good rich cow's milk. In a short time after I commenced its use, the disagreeable symptoms disappeared, my heart's action became steady and normal, the functions of the stomach were properly carried out and I again slept as soundly and as well as in my youth."

"I look upon Grape-Nuts as a perfect food, and no one can gainsay but that it has a most prominent place in a rational, scientific system of feeding. Any one who uses this food will soon be convinced of the soundness of the principle upon which it is manufactured and will thereby know the facts as to its true worth." Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

CLARE C. EDWARDS

Candidate for State Attorney of Lake County, subject to the decision of the Republican party at the primaries to be held August 8, 1908.

Clare C. Edwards was born in the town of Avon and reared on a farm about two miles north of Grayslake. He attended the public schools in Lake County, graduating and receiving a teacher's certificate at the age of 16.

After two years spent on the farm he chose the law as his profession, and with that end in view, attended the Northern Indiana Normal school, Wheaton College and the Northwestern University at Evanston, Illinois, in all five years.

He then entered the Chicago Law School and graduated therefrom in 1901, and was admitted to practice in all courts in Illinois in the early winter of 1901, and in the United States Courts in February, 1907.

During the eight years spent in college, Mr. Edwards worked and paid his expenses thus being essentially a self reliant and self made man.

Mr. Edwards has been engaged in the active practice of law in Lake County for over seven years, nearly six years of which has been in the city of Waukegan, having had an extensive and varied office and trial practice.

Mr. Edwards has, as the court records will show, been engaged in the trial of nearly all the important criminal cases tried for the past five years, among which might be mentioned, the murder cases of John Sosnosky, Pilo Gravano, Mary Ross, Salvatore Muto, Harold Mitchell and May Mitchell.

Mr. Edwards has recently been engaged to lecture to the students of the Chicago Law School for the years 1908-09 on the subject of "Criminal Law," thus being recognized as one of the leading Criminal Lawyers in the north part of the state.

By reason of his extended criminal practice and of his having made a specialty of criminal law, Mr. Edwards, if elected State's Attorney, could and would give the people of the County the benefits of this valuable training and experience.

March 1st, 1904, Mr. Edwards formed a partnership with J. K. Oryis, and on April 10, 1903, the same was dissolved by mutual consent. Mr. Edwards is now engaged in the general practice of law in the new Wetzel building, corner of Washington and County streets.

In an interview with a reporter Mr. Edwards stated:

"I am a candidate for this office, standing squarely on my past record, which is well known to the majority of the voters of Lake county. I have nothing to conceal and no promises to make further than this. If elected, I mean to so conduct the office, that I can look every man squarely in the eye and honestly say, that I am doing my plain duty, and to be able after the completion of my term to point to my record as State Attorney with pride."

He further stated, I am the candidate of no faction, association, or league, but shall appeal direct to the voters.

If any man is unacquainted with my record, let them enquire of any man that has served on the numerous juries of this county for the past six years.

Struggle with a Tiger.

Two brothers, Khuda Bakhs and Shaikh Abdul Ghaal of Muradabad were dispatched recently to Rampur on an errand, and while entering a grove at Ghadpura a tiger sprang upon Khuda Bakhs, who, being an athlete, warded off the blow aimed at him with his right hand and caught one of the paws with the other and maintained his hold, though the tiger was mauling the other hand.

Abdul Ghaal now rushed up with a stout stick, which he forced down the tiger's throat, making it release his brother's hand, when Khuda Bakhs seized another paw with his wounded hand, forcing both the paw's back. He wrestled with the tiger, keeping it down by sheer force, while Abdul Ghaal holstered it with his lathi and killed it.

The tigers was carried by the brothers to his highness the nawab of Rampur, "who kept the skin as a memento and sent Khuda Bakhs to the state dispensary for treatment."—India Daily Telegraph.

Piles are easily and quickly checked with Dr. Shoop's Magic Ointment. To prove it I will mail a small trial box as a convincing test. Simply address Dr. Shoop, Racine Wis. A Boston Charity.

Not all the old hats go to the ash heap, at least they do not all go there when they are discarded by the owners, says the Boston Record. Some hat dealers send them to the court-house, where they are given to the drunks and other men who have lost their head covering either in the scrap that preceded their arrest or in the proceedings that followed.

When you think of indigestion think of Kodol, for it is without doubt the only preparation that completely digests all classes of food. And that is what you need when you have indigestion or stomach trouble—something that will act promptly but thoroughly; something that will get right at the trouble and do the very work itself for the stomach by digesting the food that you eat and that is Kodol. It is pleasant to take. It is sold by J. H. Swan.

How to Head Off Criticism.
Forgiveness is always extended for the mixing of metaphors if the mixer takes the precaution to let it be known that he is aware of the mixing.

Monday is Circus Day

MAKE THE GLOBE YOUR HEADQUARTERS

THE Carl Hagenbeck and Great Wallace Shows combined are in Waukegan Monday. The town will undoubtedly be filled with crowds of visitors from all over Lake County. Many are planning on making it a day of recreation and will be here bright and early. The Globe extends a cordial invitation to one and all to make this your headquarters. Every convenience of this big store is at your disposal. On our second floor is a commodious rest room which is supplied with reading matter, stationery and comfortable chairs. From our large front windows on second floor one is afforded a splendid view of the parade without the inconvenience of the large crowds upon the streets.

A Circus of Bargains is the Program of the Day

We have arranged a special program for the day in the way of bargains. Every department contributes—offers something of the most dependable needful sort at a price much less than ordinary. The attractions of the crowds, the parade and the Globe's special sale, ought to be conducive to filling Waukegan with crowds such as it has not seen for many a day.

Also beginning on Monday next, the train which now leaves here, going south, at 11:17 will leave at 11:02, and the milk train which now leaves Chicago at 4:00 o'clock, will leave at 3:45.

The stand pipe was filled Saturday, and the water was turned on, Monday morning to test the mains and several leaks were discovered. The village board held a special meeting Wednesday evening and a report was made from the engineer of the waterworks, to the effect that on account of finding so many breaks in the old Waukegan pipe line through the Main street, he considered it a useless expense to attempt to repair it, and recommended that new pipe be purchased. Now let the citizens and property owners get together and petition the board to put in new pipe at once. The stand pipe and well are all that can be desired and all that is now needed is new pipe to give Antioch first class fire protection.

Thousands Have Kidney

Trouble and Never Suspect It.

Prevalency of Kidney Disease.

Most people do not realize the alarming increase and remarkable prevalence of kidney disease. While kidney disorders are the most common diseases that prevail, they are almost the last recognized by patient and physicians, who content themselves with doctoring the effects, while the original disease undermines the system.

What To Do. There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes.

You may have a sample bottle and a book that tells all about it, without free by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When home of Swamp-Root, writing mention this paper and don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y.

Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

MURDERER OF SIX?

DOWAGIAC (MICH.) MAN ACCUSED OF KILLING HALF DOZEN.

STORY OF WIFE BETRAYS

She Declares He Sought Her Life—Police Assert Prisoner Has Confessed to Slaying Two Men.

South Bend, Ind.—James Brimmingstall, aged 40, is under arrest at Dowagiac, Mich., 27 miles from South Bend, charged with six murders. The police say he has already confessed to two, and Prosecutor Braggahan is confident the prisoner will admit the other crimes. His arrest followed an alleged attempt to make his wife his seventh victim. She escaped and appealed to the police. It is probable that Brimmingstall will be subjected to further "sweat-box" examinations, and that he will be held on a charge of murdering David Huff here last June.

The police say he confessed to killing a man in Kansas, who he had a grudge against, and was sentenced to ten years in the penitentiary. After his release he killed a companion and received a sentence of three years. He gave no names.

List of Alleged Victims. The list of Brimmingstall's victims, according to the officers, is:

Man in Kansas (name not given), killed by Brimmingstall when 16 years old.

Railroad man in Missouri, name unknown, killed seven years ago.

Two men sleeping in a tent in Missouri, names unknown to officers.

David Huff, Dowagiac, June, 1907. Smith Hortum, Dowagiac, February, 1908.

Mrs. Brimmingstall, apparently distracted, appealed to Prosecuting Attorney T. J. Bresnahan for protection. She said that "Jim" was going to kill her; she could not go to sleep for fear he would break into the house and murder her. She gave hints that led to the discovery that her husband had a criminal record.

Deeded Property; Supposed Slain. David Huff, an aged citizen of Dowagiac, went to the Brimmingstall home to live a year and a half ago. He deeded them his property on their proposition to support him for the remainder of his life. One night last June a scuffle was heard in an upper room of the house. Huff was found dead in bed with the bed clothing very much disturbed. Brimmingstall said that Huff had some sort of violent illness—colic or something like it, and accidentally choked himself to death with the bed clothing. The body of Huff was buried next day and the apparent haste occasioned some comment.

In February of this year Smith Hortum disappeared. There are several circumstances tending to connect Brimmingstall with the disappearance of Hortum. Hortum's body was found frozen in the ice of a nearby stream. His money had disappeared.

TANK EXPLODES; SEVEN DIE.

Society People Aboard Launch Perish by Drowning in Arkansas.

Clarendon, Ark.—Seven prominent young society people were drowned when the gasoline tank of a launch in which they were going for a moonlight excursion exploded. Other members of the party were rescued with difficulty. One of those rescued, Miss Mary Cavett of Clarendon, was badly burned. Details of the tragedy are meager. The boat left Clarendon early in the evening, bearing a merry party, who had planned to go several miles down the river. When about five miles below Clarendon the boiler of the launch exploded, wrecking the boat and hurling the occupants into the river, which at this point, more than 50 feet from shore, is very deep. Few could swim, and some were stunned by the force of the explosion and went down before swimmers in the party could make an effort at rescue. The survivors were found on the river bank by runners dispatched from here because of the prolonged absence of the party.

Senator Platt Wins Suit.

New York.—Mae C. Wood, whose suit for an absolute divorce from United States Senator Thomas C. Platt of New York has been on trial in the supreme court here for several days, was committed to the Tombs prison late Thursday after Justice O'Gorman had dismissed the complaint in her action and ordered her held in $5,000 bail on a charge of perjury.

Veteran Theater Manager Dies.

Chicago.—John Austin Hamlin, proprietor of the Grand opera house, died Wednesday night at the Virginia hotel of heart disease. He was one of the best known theatrical managers in the country and noted for the independent manner in which he conducted the Grand opera house. He built the theater in 1872.

Woman and Man Whipped.

Morgantown, Ky.—A band of masked men called at the home of Widow Haynes at Horse Mill, about 12 miles from here, in this county, and whipped her severely. They then went to the home of Crit Johnson and took him out of bed and whipped him.

SIXTY PERISH IN A WRECK

AWFUL RAILWAY COLLISION AT CONTICH, BELGIUM.

Express Train Crashes Into Local Full of Pilgrims—The Injured Number About 100.

Antwerp.—One of the worst railroad accidents in Europe in recent times occurred at Contich, a station six miles southeast of this city on the main line, at eight o'clock Thursday morning. The exact number of victims has not been determined, owing to the difficulty of removing the bodies from the debris, but the latest estimate places the number at 60 killed and 100 wounded.

The catastrophe appears to have been due to a defective switch where the main line crosses a local line. At this point a train, carrying a large number of pilgrims on their way to a local shrine, was standing. Into this the Antwerp-Brussels express dived at a speed of 50 miles an hour, literally leaping on top of it. The heavy coaches of the express crashed the lighter train into splinters. The sides of the express cars were torn from their fastenings, the floors practically collapsing, thus precipitating the passengers to the side of the track injured, whence they fled, frenzied, across the fields. But for this fact the death toll would be much greater. Few of the occupants of the local train escaped alive. Those that were not killed were badly injured, many of them mortally. The engineer and fireman of the express were both killed at their posts.

Prince Albert went to Contich in the evening and visited the injured, having cancelled an engagement to preside at a banquet in Antwerp.

With regard to the cause of the collision, a railroad official stated that the switches were being repaired and that a workman who had been placed at the temporary hand switch appeared to have made a mistake or else the switch failed to act.

RAY LAMPHERE IS INDICTED.

True Bill Also Returned Against Mrs. Gunness, Though Dead.

Laporte, Ind.—In returning seven true bills against Ray Lamphere Friday afternoon, the Laporte county grand jury also indicted Mrs. Belle Gunness for the murder of Andrew Helgelein of Mansfield, S. D. No warrant was issued for Mrs. Gunness, as she was declared officially dead by the verdict of Coroner Mack, but in order to vote a true bill against Lamphere as an accessory in the killing of Helgelein, it was necessary to indict Mrs. Gunness as the principal. Lamphere now stands charged with arson, five murders and being an accessory in the Helgelein murder.

Separate bills were voted against Lamphere for the murder, in the first degree, of Mrs. Belle Gunness and her three children, Philip Gunness, Myrtle Sorenson and Lucy Sorenson.

The digging Friday under the direction of Sheriff Smutzer resulted in the unearthing of a human skull, which it was decided belongs to one of the bodies dug up in the chicken yard two weeks ago. At that time three skeletons were found in one hole, but there were only two skulls. The skull found was in a cess-pool, but why it was dropped there and the rest of the body buried in the little cemetery the authorities cannot explain. Long hair attached to the skull is considered evidence that it is that of a woman. One of the three dismembered bodies referred to was that of a female.

ANNA AND HELIE MARRIED.

New Jersey Justice Admits He Performed the Ceremony.

New York.—Definite confirmation of the fact that Anna Gould, the divorced wife of Count Boni de Castellane, was the bride of Prince Helle de Sagan when they sailed for Europe on April 11, aboard different steamships, was given by W. C. Bendenbender, the Hoboken justice of the peace who officiated at their marriage.

With great reluctance Justice Bendenbender admitted that he had tied the knot under a pledge of the greatest secrecy, and that to keep this, he had been prevented from making a report of the wedding to the Hoboken board of health in 30 days, as is required by the state law.

None Killed by Airship Fall.

Berkeley, Cal.—The seven men seriously injured in the sensational airship accident here Saturday are all doing well at the Roosevelt hospital. None of them will die. J. V. Rodgers, one of the assistant engineers in the crew of 14 that went up in the huge dirigible balloon, who was believed to be fatally injured, will recover. J. A. Morrell, the inventor, and Capt. Penfold, the Australian aeronaut, who stowed away in the air craft after he had been ordered off and who had both legs broken, are both much improved.

Fatal Street Car Collision.

San Francisco.—Two crowded trolley cars collided on Sacramento street at the foot of a steep hill shortly after noon Sunday, killing Henry Baer, a traveling salesman, and injuring 20 other passengers, one fatally.

Ball-Player Falls Dead.

St. Louis.—Heart failure, caused by a long throw from deep left field to the home plate in a game Sunday between two local baseball teams, resulted in the sudden death of John R. Perry, an amateur player.

WHAT WE SAY ABOUT THE WEATHER.

TEXAS IS SWEEP BY STORM

DAMAGE TO CROPS AND TREES IS WORST IN YEARS.

Oklahoma Towns Flooded by Rains, Train Services Stopped and Natural Gas Supply Cut Off.

Austin, Tex.—A terrific wind and rainstorm that at times developed into a tornado swept Texas from the Panhandle to the Gulf early Sunday. The destruction to crops, trees and shrubbery was the greatest reported in years.

In numerous places houses were unroofed and small villages and hamlets in many instances were inundated by the terrific rainfall which, in the space of four hours, reached seven inches in many sections. Austin was in the path of the worst of the storm and for hours the streets were impassable. Electric light and telephone connections were disabled and many houses were unroofed.

Muskogee, Okla.—Not a railroad in Oklahoma is in operation as a result of the heavy rains and cloudbursts that have occurred in various parts of the state during the past three days. To add to the disaster, the main supplying natural gas to the Indian Territory part of the state was carried away with the Clarksville bridge and the supply of gas for Muskogee and several other cities in the southeast part of the state has been entirely cut off.

Guthrie, Okla.—All West Guthrie is inundated, with from seven to ten feet of water rushing through the streets. The Cottonwood river is 25 miles wide in places and is still rising. Not a train arrived in Guthrie Sunday.

Tulsa, Okla.—As a result of an almost incessant downpour of rain in Oklahoma for the past three days, the Arkansas river has risen 13 feet and is still steadily rising. At six o'clock Sunday night the river had reached the highest point in 14 years. Parts of West Tulsa and Jenks, 14 miles south of here, are inundated and the inhabitants are moving from their homes.

UNIVERSITY OFFICIAL QUILTS.

Secretary Wade of Michigan Resigns Because of Charges.

Ann Arbor.—James H. Wade, for 25 years secretary of the University of Michigan, submitted his resignation Friday to the board of regents and it was unanimously accepted. The resignation followed an investigation of the university finances, which Attorney General Byrd has been pursuing for several weeks. The investigation centered around the alleged improper use of university property, such as coal and painting and building materials and workmen's time, to an amount estimated at about $5,000. Prof. Martin L. D'Oague was appointed acting secretary to sign this year's diplomas.

Meets Predicted Death Bravely.

New York.—The fate that the physicians at the Pasteur Institute predicted for him on Monday overtook William H. Marsh of Brooklyn late Wednesday, when at his residence on Ocean avenue the well-to-do manufacturer of water meters died of hydrophobia. His end was peaceful, as he was put under the influence of opiates early in the day and was kept free from pain to the last.

Kansas City, Mo.—Rev. Dr. Baxley P. Fullerton of St. Louis was elected moderator of the Presbyterian church in the United States Thursday, to succeed Rev. Dr. William H. Roberts of Philadelphia.

Murderer Kills Himself.

New York.—Returning to the neighborhood from which he had fled after killing Miss Nana E. Deane by shooting her in her grandmother's home in Brooklyn Saturday night because she had rejected him, Lipman Kessler committed suicide.

Russian Revolutionists Convicted.

St. Petersburg.—The court-martial of 11 revolutionists has resulted in the sentencing of four of the accused to death and six to periods of penal servitude. One was acquitted.

PRIEST STABBED IN CHURCH.

Missouri Farmer, Seemingly Drugged, Wounds His Pastor.

Salisbury, Mo.—Rev. Father Joseph F. Labeley, aged 33 years, pastor of St. Joseph's Catholic church of Salisbury, was stabbed twice with a pocket knife and perhaps fatally injured in church Sunday morning by Joseph Schuetz, a prosperous farmer living near here and a member of the church, who is believed to have become suddenly deranged.

The stabbing occurred in view of 400 worshippers, many of them women. The injured man was taken to a nearby residence, where his wounds were attended to by physicians. His condition is critical.

Immediately after Father Labeley had finished high mass he started to leave the church. At the door he was rushed upon suddenly from behind by Schuetz, who stabbed him twice, felling him. The first blow from the knife struck the priest in the temple and the second cut a deep gash in the neck, just missing the jugular vein. The crazed man was about to stab the priest a third time when Mrs. Barbara Glinter and John Gales, both members of the church, caught his uplifted hand. In the struggle which followed Schuetz stabbed Mrs. Glinter in the head and inflicted a painful cut on Gales' arm. A dozen men came to the aid of Mrs. Glinter and Gales, and overpowered Schuetz. Struggling and fighting, he was taken to jail.

RUEF JURY DISAGREES.

Mistrial in Case Against Former Boss of San Francisco.

San Francisco.—After being out for 4½ hours, the jury in the trial of Abraham Ruef, the former political boss of San Francisco, and central figure in the bribery-graft prosecution, against whom wholesale indictments were returned, failed to agree upon a verdict and was discharged at five o'clock Thursday afternoon by Judge Maurice T. Doelling.

The specific charge against Ruef in the trial just closed was the offer of a bribe of $1,000 to former Supervisor Jennings Phillips to influence his vote favorably upon an electric railroad franchise applied for by the Parkside Realty company. The jury stood six to six upon the first ballot and remained so without a change during the 13 ballots taken. It was learned that the question upon which the jury split was the credibility of the witnesses. There still remain 111 indictments pending against Ruef.

STRANGLES WIFE TO DEATH.

Ohio Man Confesses He Committed the Brutal Murder.

Newark, O.—Ernest Terwilliger, self-confessed wife murderer, is lodged in the city prison and special guard of police reserves is on duty to prevent possible violence at the hands of infuriated citizens.

Terwilliger was arrested Sunday morning following the discovery of the body of his wife, who had been strangled to death in her room, and in the afternoon he admitted the crime. As soon as the news of his confession spread people began to congregate about the city prison where he was lodged, and by night the crowd became so large that the authorities considered it best to take precautions to insure the safety of the prisoner.

M. Fallieres Visits London.

London.—President Fallieres arrived in London Monday to return the visits which King Edward VII. and other members of the British royal family have paid to the head of the French republic in Paris. M. Fallieres crossed the channel in the French cruiser Leon Gambetta. The trip to London was made in a royal ear.

King Edward, the prince of Wales and representatives of the government were on hand to greet M. Fallieres and from that moment a four-days' round of entertainment commenced.

BANDITS ARE FOILED

TRY TO ROB BANK MESSENGERS IN BROAD DAYLIGHT.

GRAB BAGS FULL OF CASH

Men Attacked in New York Resist Bravely and Save $43,000 With Aid of Plucky Waitress.

New York.—In broad daylight and in one of the densely populated portions of the city three thugs late Monday afternoon made a daring attempt to hold up and rob a trio of bank messengers as they were carrying $43,000 in cash from one of the bank's branches to its main building.

Black pepper was showered upon the messengers, one of them was hit with a blackjack and another slashed with a knife in the desperate effort of their assailants to seize the money and escape with it before the arrival of assistance. That they failed to get clear with the valises filled with coin and bills which the bank employees were carrying was due to the stubbornness with which the messengers resisted the attack and to the bravery of a young Polish waitress in a restaurant.

The messengers were employees of the Jefferson bank and were on their way from the branch at Clinton and Houston streets to the main bank on Canal street. On First street three men jumped upon them and threw pepper in their faces, the leading thug attacking Samuel Edelman, who carried the bulk of the money, grabbing his money bag and attempting to run with it. The other thugs took care of Joseph H. Velsor and Abraham Stern, the other messengers.

Edelman tried to shake his assailant off, but was falling badly under the pummeling when Mrs. Eya Javornicka, waitress in a nearby restaurant, grabbed the leader of the attacking band by the arm. She screamed so loudly for help that a patrolman came running up, frightening the other two thugs away, and was right at the heels of the man who had attacked Edelman by the time he had managed to shake himself free from the waitress. The fugitive was captured.

The man arrested gave his name as Casimo Roccocone. The police later arrested Roccocone's father, Giovanni Roccocone, and his two brothers, Salvatore and Damiano Roccocone, who are held as suspects for a further examination.

THAW MUST STAY IN ASYLUM.

Justice Morschauer Decides the Prisoner is Still Insane.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y.—Harry K. Thaw, the slayer of Stanford White, must stay in the asylum. This is the decision of Justice Morschauer of the supreme court, filed Monday in the matter of Thaw's application for release on a writ of habeas corpus.

Both points brought up by Thaw's attorneys are decided against him. The justice declares that the prisoner is insane and should not be allowed at large, and that the commitment to the asylum by Justice Dowling after the second trial of the murder case was legal.

Thaw accepted the decision with resignation and no appeal will be taken. If his attorney's request that the prisoner be transferred to another asylum is granted.

MRS. VANDERBILT DIVORCED.

Wife of New York Millionaire Is Granted Decree.

New York.—Mrs. Ellen French Vanderbilt was granted an interlocutory decree of divorce from Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt by Justice O'Gorman in the supreme court Monday.

The decree provides that Mrs. Vanderbilt may marry during the lifetime of Mr. Vanderbilt, but prevents him from marrying during her lifetime. The custody of William H. Vanderbilt, the only child of the marriage, was awarded to Mrs. Vanderbilt. No provision was made for alimony.

New York.—Justice of the Peace William Bendenbender of Hoboken, whose name had been mentioned in connection with reports that Prince de Sagan and Mme. Gould were married in New Jersey, denied positively Monday that he performed the marriage.

Fog Disastrous to Shipping.

New York.—Dense fog banks which have been sweeping in from the sea for several days, enveloping the eastern seaboard with impenetrable curtains and delaying all shipping, lured two coastwise steamships—the Clyde line steamer Seminole and an unknown steamer—off their courses Monday night, the shifting shoals that fringe the Jersey coast caused a mid-river collision of two steamers Monday night in the harbor, which threw over 800 passengers into a state of panic and started ferryboat service.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a running ear or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness caused by Catarrh, which cannot be cured by Bell's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Successful Demonstration.

Romulus was founding Rome.

"What I'm trying to do," he explained, "is to show that it is possible to start a big town without building it around an oil well or a copper mine."

At this inopportune moment Remus broke in with a remark that the new city was a Bullo, all right; and he got it in the neck, as you find fully set forth in your Latin reader.
